BROADCASTING

Internship Opportunity in Broadcasting and Journalism

The McGraw-Hill Broadcasting Company owns and operates 4 ABC affiliates, 3 Azteca America affiliates and several web sites. We actively search for interns throughout the year and offer a wide range of unpaid internship positions for anyone interested in the broadcasting and television business. The internship offers unlimited opportunities to acquire skills and interact with professionals in all departments of the television station.

Internships are available spring, summer and fall semesters. Semester periods run from January to May (with an application deadline of Dec. 1), May to August (with an April 1 deadline) and September to January (with a July 15 deadline).

Students have the opportunity to intern in the sports, weather, news, online, electronic art, photography, promotion, community affairs, sales and research departments. We are especially interested in students who would like to write or produce video for our popular news web sites.

The experiences are varied and offer a student who is academically prepared an outstanding opportunity to learn.

To qualify, students must be either a junior or senior in college or at a university, and must receive college credits for their internship.

To become a McGraw-Hill Broadcasting intern, please review your status and availability with your professor or advisor; and send the following information to:

Heidi Armstrong
McGraw-Hill Broadcasting
123 Speer Blvd.
Denver, CO 80203.

In the application packet you must include:

1. Cover letter stating your area of interest and availability
2. Resume
3. Two (2) letters of reference
4. Confirmation letter from school verifying credit
5. Official school transcript. Once we have received your complete packet, you may be contacted for an interview.
6. Which location(s) you're interested in: Indianapolis, Denver, San Diego and/or Bakersfield, CA.
